BPHC invites you to an informative and powerful program focused on the impact of poverty on our communities' health.

Poverty has a direct link to poor health as evidenced in the Bronx where families live with significantly higher rates of chronic diseases like asthma, diabetes, and heart disease.

Experts will explore the relationship between poverty and health disparities and how we can improve our patients' and clients' experience when they visit us for services. Participants will also take on the role of family members living on a limited budget to better understand the daily challenges they face and the toll it takes on their health and access to care.

Registration is filled for our Poverty Simulation being held on October 17th, but we have spaces left for our November 14th program. We encourage you to register and offer this opportunity to staff members who would benefit from participating.

Register at the link above or download the flyer here.

Free Mental Health First Aid Trainings

The NYC Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH) offers free Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) training to all New Yorkers.

MHFA introduces people to risk factors and warning signs of mental health problems and common treatments.

The eight-hour course includes role-playing and simulations to demonstrate how to assess a mental health crisis; select interventions and provide initial help; and connect people to professional, peer, social, and self-help care.

The training is not a substitute for professional help, but may help in stabilizing the person until appropriate professionals can be engaged.

MHFA trainings are offered on an ongoing basis at the Bronx Neighborhood Health Action Center. Learn more and register here.
